Articles and books in preparation

Global Israel: Settler Colonialism and Rupture, a current book project that explores the local, regional, and global implications of Israeli settler colonialism. Two academic publishers (I.B. Tauris book series in Palestine Studies, and The University of Minnesota Press) have already expressed interest in the manuscript proposal.

A Reader in Palestine Studies: An edited volume of Palestinian knowledge production since the early 20th century. New York University Press expressed interest in the proposed edited volume.

“Ibn Khaldun and Contemporary Knowledge: Making 14th Century Arabic Writing relevant to Humanities and Social Sciences.” The article is an attempt to summarize and analyze the sociological approach offered by Ibn Khaldun in the study of conditions for sustainable states and societies. It is still under preparation.
